

Twenty-Seven Are Dead and Property Loss Is Millions

Many Missing Believed to Have Been Drowned in Raging Torrents in River Course

COMMUNICATION AND TRAFFIC WRECKED

(By United Press)
Erie, August 4.—Twenty-seven bodies had been recovered this afternoon from several ruins here, and it is believed that still others lie buried in the wreckage. The death toll resulting from the three cloud bursts last night that caused in addition $3,000,000 of property damage, plunged the city in darkness and tied up railroads and wire communications, was placed by coroner Dan Hanley at at least fifty.

The identified dead include John Donovan, fireman, killed in saving fire Chief McMahon; John Higgins, Mrs. Higgins and two children; Mrs. Emma Osborne, 44; Thomas Langdon, 24, and Swampie Anderson. All bodies were taken to the morgue. Most of the victims lost their lives when their homes were wrecked. Several entire families are still missing in the zone hardest hit.

Twenty-five Lake Shore trains were halted between northeast Pennsylvania and Erie. Gas and electric plants are out of commission and newspapers are being set in hand type. The flood is the worst in the history of the Mill Creek valley. Shortly after the heavens released their deluge it became a raging torrent. Four mile creek also ran wild, and the park at the mouth of the latter stream was wrecked. The theatre, pavilion and other buildings were washed into the lake, while a number of people barely escaped with their lives.

It is believed that the loss is confined to Erie and near vicinity, though wire communications with surrounding towns was cut off.

Mayor Stern of Erie acted promptly for the relief of the city. The armory of the National guard has been thrown open and 400 homeless are being housed there. The state militia have been ordered out to patrol the flooded section. A public dining room was opened in the building of the Erie Herald. Relief funds have been drawn upon their own stocks for clothing, shoes and other necessities for the destitute.

The tracks of the New York Central and Nickel Plate Railroad companies were badly damaged at Westleyville three miles east of Erie.

Cambridge Springs Suffers
Harrisburg, August 4.—The storm that struck Erie last night did extensive damage to Cambridge Springs, reports received here today stated. The municipal light plant which operates the filtration plant stated that section was put out of commission. Health Commissioner Dixon ordered a commissioner from Harrisburg to Cambridge Springs. He said that he stands ready to assist Erie should that city ask his aid, but he thinks it hardly possible that an appeal will be made.

Meadeville Also Hit
Meadeville, Aug. 4.—This city and surrounding country suffered considerable damage, but so far as has been learned no loss of life, in two cloud bursts last night. Four bridges between here and Erie were swept away and two washouts between this city and Exposition park on the line of the Northwestern railroad, it was reported today. The damage is estimated at $15,000.

CURWENVILLE BAND WILL BE AT RED MEN'S REUNION

Will compete in contest of bands in park in afternoon

The Curwensville Keystone Cornet band has been secured by the Red Men for their reunion at Clearfield on August 6. Curwensville people take pride in this band and in the fact which it has won in various contests.

The band will give two concerts at their headquarters at the Duquesne hotel during the day. The first concert will be at 9 o'clock this morning and another at 7 o'clock.

In addition to this band the Red Men have obtained numerous other bands for the occasion. Each of the three tribes which compose the association in this district are expected

CHARGES GERMANS WITH SUPPORTING HUERTA'S ATTEMPT

Providence Journal Makes Sensational Charge Against Embassy

Captain Boy-Ed, of Fake Passport Fame, Again to the Fore With a Plan to Embarrass the United States Government.

New York, August 4.—In a circumstantial story appearing today the Providence (R. I.) Journal makes the sensational charge that the German Ambassador Count Bernstorff, and Captain Boy-Ed, naval attaché of the German embassy, instigated the recent attempt of Victoriano Huerta to return to Mexico in effort to involve the United States in war with the southern Republic to distract public attention from the Lusitania incident, and to cause this government to check the exportation of war materials to the Allies.

According to the Journal, the plot was fivefold, and was designed:

- "1. To divert the public mind in the United States from the crime of the sinking of the Lusitania.
- "2. To divert the transportation of munitions of war from their British and continental destinations and to bring about a condition that would compel the government, in order to carry through a successful campaign in Mexico, to insist that manufacturers of arms and munitions should cease supplying foreign governments until home demands were filled.
- "3. To compel the lease or purchase by the United States of the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd ships now tied up in New York harbor and which would be necessary for use by the American government for transportation purposes in hostilities with Mexico.
- "4. To put a stop to the traffic now going on from Mexico to Great Britain and France in large quantities of oil from Mexican fields.
- "5. To force President Wilson to proclaim another embargo on the shipment of arms to Mexico and to use that declaration in the attempt to bring before the American people the apparent difference in the Washington policy as between Mexico and the Allies in this respect.

In an interview last night Secretary of State Lansing denied that the state department was in the least of the plot or that Huerta's arrest followed its disclosure by persons sent to Washington by the Journal.

BELGIANS WEAR A SCRAP OF PAPER IN BUTTON HOLES

Celebrate Anniversary of War By Silent Reproach to German Treaty Violation

Great Britain Celebrates First Year of War in Sombre Ceremony Throughout the Empire—Prayers Invoke Divine Aid.

(By United Press)
London, August 4.—Throughout the world of British subjects today a universal anniversary program was carried out in commemoration of the ending of the first year of the war, a feature of which was adoption of the following resolution:

"That on the anniversary of the declaration of a righteous war this meeting of citizens records its inflexible determination to continue to a victorious end the struggle in maintenance of those ideals of liberty and justice which are the common sacred cause of the allies."

London's part brought thousands to the vicinity of St. Paul's cathedral where King George, Premier Asquith and other national leaders gathered to invoke divine aid.

Reports from Amsterdam stated that many Belgians were scraps of paper in their button holes this being the anniversary of the day of the German chancellor's alleged "scrap of paper" report. They were forbidden to wear the British colors.

DANCING MASTERS IN CONVENTION

(By United Press)
Oakland, Cal., Aug. 4.—Two hundred dancing masters from different parts of the United States are here to attend the annual convention of the National Dancing Master's Association which is being held here beginning today and lasting until Aug. 14 under the auspices of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

One meeting during the convention will be devoted to the discussion of means to obtain legislation for the protection of qualified dancing teachers. Z. L. Hinson of San Francisco, president of the association, declares that the public should be safe guarded against ignorant and immoral dancing masters and that one can only be a dancing master if he is a teacher.

PUNY LOSS GREAT FROM WEEKS FLOOD AND CLODBURST

One Life Lost and Thousands in Damage to Property When Stream Leave Banks

Streets of Town Are Submerged by Downpour to Depth of Several Feet and Mines Filled Until Work Is Stopped for a Few Days.

The torrential rains which flooded Clearfield county the first of this week are reported to have done several thousand dollars worth of damage at Punxsutawney by flooding the streets to a depth of several feet, and filling the mines to such an extent that work had to be suspended.

One life is reported to have been lost. The five year old son of Peter Ropinsky at Anita near Punxsutawney met death by drowning in Elk Run which swept the boy away before help could be called. The body was recovered.

"RUSSIAN LEGATION SAYS WARSAW IS EVACUATED"

Berlin, Aug. 4.—The Russian legation at The Hague officially announced the evacuation of Warsaw according to dispatches received here today. The evacuation was ordered because the Russian army lacked ammunition to defend the city properly, it was declared. Destruction of the Vistula bridges has been ordered.

Dispatches from the Russian front say that according to the forces of Ivanov is proceeding satisfactorily. The Austro-Germans have been captured and eight of the outer forts about the city and the possibility of the Russian forces there to escape is diminishing.

Great Britain Believes Kaiser's Peace Plans Based Upon the Rights of Might

Earl of Selborne Tells Another Phase of England's Position in the Great War—Fighting for Permanent Peace Based Upon Christian Principles.

By the Earl of Selborne, K. G., G. C. M. G., P. C., etc

We hate war and did not enter upon this war light heartedly. We knew that Germany and Austria possessed an immense military power accumulated through years of preparation and that the war had been forced on Europe at a moment deliberately chosen by the central powers as that most favorable to themselves. We knew that the war must be a terrible one and a long one. But the path of duty seemed quite plain to us. We perceive that the German Government had dishonored the faith of Germany and attacked the country it had promised to defend in pursuance of a deliberate policy, which, if successful, involved the ruin alike of Belgium and of France and of the British empire.

The German Government proposes to itself to establish peace in the world by the dominant power of Germany. The German army and navy is to act as the world's police and to enforce on other nations a rule of conduct prescribed for them by the German Government. Any nation great or small, which stands in the way of the success of this policy is to be ground into the dust.

We are fighting, therefore, not only for our existence as a great power but also for our national ideals, since this conception of world policy is incompatible with our idea of the liberty of nations or of individual men. It involves moreover, as we have seen repeatedly in the last twelve months, the action of Germany as a non-moral State, whereas we believe that there is no hope for the progress of the world towards peace unless the nations are prepared to accept the Christian code of the duties of trustees as that on which they should endeavor to act in their relations with one another.

Any boasting would be silly as profane if breathed in connection with such a struggle. It is enough to say that the British people have never had and have not a shadow of doubt that their duty is to fight out these issues to the end, and that they have supreme confidence in their Allies and in themselves.

Petrograd, August 4.—General Gallwitz' new drive southward toward the Petrograd-Warsaw railway is being held up by the stubborn Russian resistance along the railway leading from Vysokof. It is officially admitted that the Slav losses in the last 48 hours have been very heavy. A brief official circle gave no information regarding the German assault from the north, but nevertheless it was considered very interesting in military circles. Last official communications reported the Germans making progress along the Narew river, but with considerable losses. Today's dispatches state that the Russians are valiantly resisting the enemy's attack on the Narew river. Military men here take this to mean that the German advance has been brought to a halt. It is believed that if the Russian line of the Narew advance can hold out two days more Russian armies will have reached the new positions assigned for them beyond the Vistula.

WOMEN'S SKIRTS SAVE RUSSIANS

(By United Press)

Petrograd, July 1. (By mail)—How two Russian airmen, forced to the Nieman river region outwitted the enemy with petticoats was a story today from the front.

The scene of their landing was a small Lithuanian village where they burned their disabled aeroplane and appealed to sympathetic peasant women to help them escape. The women gave up their skirts, blouses and even supplied the unfortunates with a kerchief apiece. Carrying market baskets, the airmen calmly walked through the enemy lines until they reached the river. Here they drove into the stream, skirts and all but in doing so revealed their true identity. A fusillade of bullets followed from the Germans but the aviators succeeded in reaching the Russian shore bedraggled but safe.

A "QUALIFIED" STENOGRAPHER

A young woman who recently sent a railroad president a written application for "a secretarial position" is said to have recommended herself as follows:

"A competent and qualified stenographer, experienced in charting statistics, possessed of the taciturnity and discretion necessary to association with executives, broadly read on matters germane to railroad operation, a student of unity and clearness in composition, with an acquisition of that uncommon knowledge of English—including the study of word differentiations—essential to the highest grade of stenographic work, an omnivorous though active reader with a vocabulary sufficiently large to meet the requirements of both your vocative and avocative correspondence. I am fitted to give such service as would be demanded by one in your capacity."

The applicant added that she would be glad to give to any designated subordinate an oral expatiation of her fitness for the position. Instead of jumping at such rare talents, the railroad president is said to have listened to send the applicant an assurance that there was not and would not be any opening. Perhaps he feared that, in spite of the promise of "taciturnity and discretion," that he might daily become the victim of the "oral expatiation" of a great variety of subjects as he listened for breath between stunts of "vocative" and "avocative" correspondence. In any case one can understand his reluctance to take into his office so resistless a cataract of words. Evidently a stenographer can be too highly qualified.

NEGRO REPUBLICS

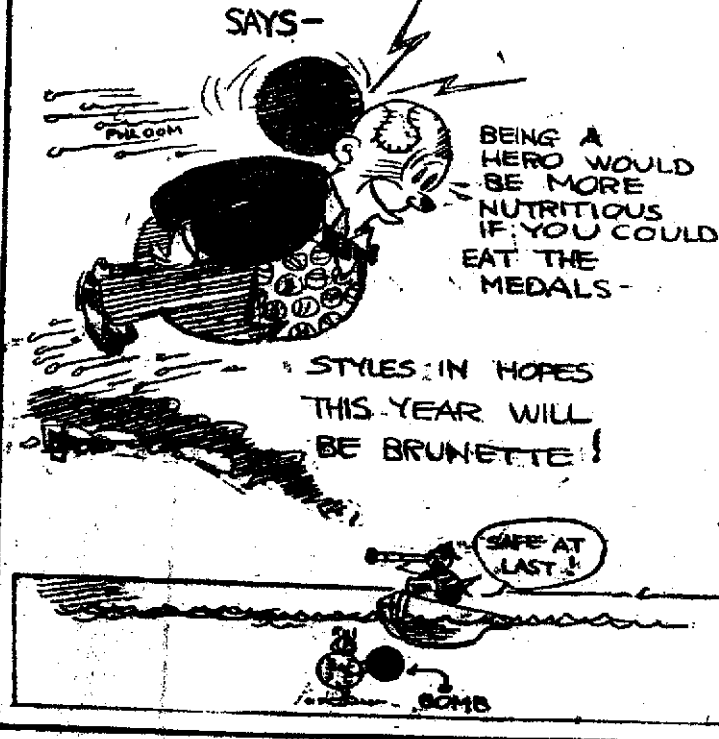

After seeking to check insurrection by executing 160 political prisoners, President Guillaume (William) Sam of Hayti was on July 28 chased out of his refuge in the French legation at Port au Prince, shot, dismembered and portions of his body were dragged through the streets. Such savage anarchy is nothing new in Hayti which has been almost a continual scene of revolution ever since the yoke of the white man was thrown off more than a century ago.

The western half of the old island of Hispaniola was originally held by France and called Hayti, the eastern half being held by Spain and called San Domingo. The aboriginal native Caribs, a gentle variety of the American Indian, soon virtually disappeared after the coming of the white man, and the population of the island is now almost wholly of African stock, descendants of the enormous importations of negroes from the Dark Continent. About the year 1800 after a series of insurrections the blacks achieved independence, the French section of the island domination until the middle of the nineteenth century, since which time Hayti and San Domingo have maintained separate governments, their war-made rulers sometimes calling themselves emperor and sometimes president. San Domingo long ago became almost a synonym for massacre and the renown of Hayti has been scarcely less infamous.

The fact that the so-called republics of Hayti and San Domingo are in a sense within our sphere of influence calls to mind a third negro republic which was of American origin. Liberia, on the west coast of Africa, was founded in 1821 by the American Colonization society, of which Henry Clay was president, and was settled by emancipated negroes from the United States, being left to its own resources and becoming independent in 1847. Much less violent disturbance has been reported from Liberia than from Hayti and San Domingo, but, in spite of all the coddling and tutelage received from the United States, this third black republic has not prospered materially, and, according to the accounts, has deteriorated morally, tending back toward West African superstition and savagery. Although slavery was forbidden from the outset, travellers within a dozen years past have reported that slaves could be purchased in Liberian towns for ten dollars a head.

According to the students of the subject, native African tribes have remained stationary for 5000 years. Little if any more capacity for real advancement seems to be shown by the negroes of Hayti, San Domingo and Liberia who have had the advantage of a certain amount of training under the white man. As to capacity for self-government, organization and the orderly processes of civilization, these three black republics appear to be almost totally lacking, and especially in Hayti and San Domingo the trend seems to be in the direction of barbarism as hopeless as that of Dahomey or Ashanti. Happily the United States is no longer responsible for Liberia. Unhappily our government considers itself in a measure responsible for order in Hayti and San Domingo, and in consequence American marines have been landed at Port au Prince. The annexation of the whole island by the United States has often been predicted and by some Americans seems to be desired. But it is to be hoped that we can compel respect for the rights of foreigners without resorting to a most undesirable solution of which we should soon bitterly repent.

Today's Geographic Study of The Great European War Zone

A description of Pultusk, where the Russian line stiffened just north of Warsaw and where the Russians developed a mighty opposition to von Hindenburg's advance, was given out here today by the National Geographic Society.

"It was at Pultusk, on the north bank of the river Narwa, that Charles XII, of Sweden, won his celebrated victory over the Saxon armies, the flower of which he besieged in the great castle, whose remains are still the first features of the fortress town. This victory was won in 1703 to further Charles' idea as to how the republic of Poland ought to be governed. Pultusk was again the field of a great battle action, when, in 1806, the irresistible triumph-drunken legions of Napoleon swept all before them out of the strongholds here. This battle was fought over the icy fields of December, when morass and swamp become solid foundations of frozen dark earth.

"Pultusk is one of the important fortified towns, which, spread out fanwise, guard Warsaw from the north and west. It lies 33 miles north of the metropolis, with the Narwa River at its back and the Bug fifteen miles to the north. While strongly defended, it does not compare in the power of its works with Novo Georgievsk or Ivangorod. It is, however, one of the important gates on that line toward the capital, which takes its way from East Prussia over Malawa, Ostrolenka and Przasnysz.

"The town, with a present population of about 20,000, has shared in the Polish industrial spurt. It was at most entirely destroyed by a great fire in 1875, and the rebuilding has made it a place greatly in advance of the usual Polish towns. A textile industry has taken root. Woolen and linen goods are manufactured, and stimulated from Chemnitz, the great German center for the manufacture of stockings, a hosiery fabrication has been developed. Large copper works and potteries are also among Pultusk's leading businesses. The place is very old, having been founded in 956.

FRANCE KEEPS WAR ANNIVERSARY

(By United Press)
 Paris, Aug. 4.—All classes of the people today observed in one form or another the first anniversary of Germany's declaration of war on France. Special church services were held in the cities, towns and hamlets throughout the republic. In most instances these were followed by public meetings with patriotic addresses predicting the ultimate victory of the Allies. In Paris the members of the chamber of deputies assembled for solemn memorial services in honor of those of their colleagues who have fallen in the conflict.

ENGLAND OBSERVES THE DAY

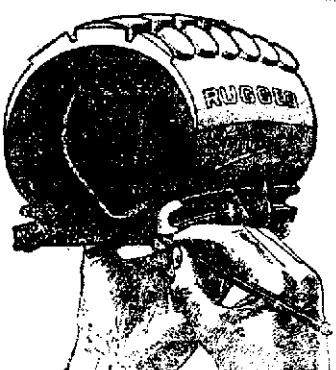

(By United Press)
 London, Aug. 4.—A public holiday was kept by the British nation today to mark the first anniversary of the declaration of war. In every city, town and village, throughout the Empire public meetings were held to invoke God's help in fulfilling Britain's vows of victory. A great memorial service was held in the Cathedral of St. Paul's and this was attended by people of every walk in life, from King George, in the uniforms of an admiral of the fleet, down to the common laborer. The king, surrounded by a brilliantly uniformed staff, occupied a seat beneath the great dome, and the other parts of the cathedral were filled to their utmost capacity. Premier Asquith and all the cabinet ministers were among present.

CHELM, OBJECTIVE OF MACKENSEN, A RUSS STRONGHOLD

"Russification" of Poland Has Been Conducted From This Ancient City

So Situated as To Cause Constant Worry to Invading Germans It Has Been Marked for Capture—Modern Railway Line Only New Touch.

Washington, August 4.—"Kholm, or Chelm, as the Poles spell it, has been one of the most interesting of Polish towns under Russian administration, for from this quiet corner of subject, Poland the government program for the russification of the Poles has been directed," says a descriptive statement issued by the National Geographic Society. "Just over the Russian border, surrounded by endless acres of forest and agricultural land, the whole region in which it lies possessed of but indifferent means for communication, and so, screened from the feverish, suspicious politics of Warsaw and other Polish centers, Kholm, in peace times was a strategic point of rare advantages for the propagation of Russian influences.

"The Russian ideals, the Russian tongue, Russian methods and the Russian religion entered Poland by way of Kholm, and from here painstaking efforts were made to spread them among all the peasantry. The Russian point of view has sought to penetrate by way of the Kholm-Lublin-Ivangorod railway line, and from here, too, it has made its way south, even beyond the Galician borders to the great Polish city of Lemberg. Thus, Kholm, which the Russian soldiers defended so splendidly, was a Russian stronghold in more senses than one. It was the sentimental and intellectual heart of the Russian program in Poland.

"Kholm is the seat of a Russian bishop. The national Greek church, though it claims but few followers over the Polish boundary, is here strongly entrenched. The city supports a number of Greek churches and an Ecclesiastical Seminary, long founded here offers to the Poles and to the Russian Missionaries to the Poles the learning of the Greek church. The Russian church has based mighty efforts from Kholm for the conversion of the Poles to the 'Church of most of the Slavs.' Its success, however, is still hanging in the balance.

"The city is very ancient. It was founded by Daniel, Prince of Galicz, as business headquarters for his family estates. It is today a living specimen of archaeology, with the railway running through it as one of the few reminders of the modern age. The shell fire of today shaking this out-of-date, time sleepy city must cause an uncanny realization among its citizens of the strides that the ages have made since Kholm last came into immediate contact with the outside world. The city, most of which was built without a plan, provides a home for 20,000 people, and, before the outbreak of the war, provided an arsenal, a quiet but powerful source of russification plans and schemes.

"Lublin, the important manufacturing town of this part of Russian Poland, lies 45 miles west-northwest of Kholm by the Kief-Warsaw Railway. Kholm forms the south termination of the strategic railroad that runs behind the last line of Russian defense in Poland, that north-and-south line of the Bug, reinforced and continued north from the Bug, by the Kholm-Brest-Litovsk-Biostok-Osoviec Railway. Its possession, therefore, is of great military importance. The country around Kholm grows an abundance of grains, and is, also, very rich in its production of other agricultural products."

BIRTHDAY OF REVENUE CUTTER SERVICE

(By United Press)
 Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—All over the world today, wherever they may be, the officers and crews of the United States revenue cutter service will formally celebrate the 125th anniversary of the establishment of the service. The character of the celebration will be substantially the same on all of the vessels. The ships will be "full dressed"—resplendent with flags and bunting from deck to fore top; the officers and crews in full uniform will be mustered on the main deck and the executive officer will read a brief history of the revenue cutter service. Since its establishment in 1790 the functions of the service have grown until today they include a variety of activities ranging from the assistance of vessels in distress and the enforcement of customs and navigation laws to the suppression of autinities.

Jumps Overboard, Captain to Rescue Excites Admiration of Submarine Commander

Prussian Awarded Silver "Life-Saving" Medal by Board of Trade, and Crew Rewarded for Heroism Displayed in Face of Danger.

BY WILBUR S. FORREST
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
London, July 20. (By mail)—Thirty-eight members of the crew of the British cargo steamer Caucasian, torpedoed off the British coast, owe their lives to a diminutive Pomeranian dog.

The story was told today at headquarters of the National Canine Defence League where Captain Robinson of the Caucasian was awarded a silver medal for saving the life of the dog and consequently the crew.

The Caucasian was torpedoed after a submarine had pursued the vessel for an hour. While the crew were warning the boats, Captain Robinson handed "Betty," his wife's pet Pomeranian dog to the second mate directing that the animal be placed in a lifeboat. The mate handed "Betty" to a member of the crew who accidentally dropped her overboard.

When the captain entered the boat he saw the little dog swimming toward the ship. He immediately jumped into the water and swam about a quarter of a mile. When he reached the dog he placed it on his shoulder and was surprised to find that he was within a few yards of the submarine. The German officer of the craft, standing on deck, addressed him in imperfect English:

"I had made up my mind to blow up your life boats because you did not stop your ship, but I will not do so in reward for your brave swim to save your little dog."

Captain Robinson swam back to his lifeboat and the submarine proceeded to its search for other victims. The dog were picked up by the British carrier Inglemoor but immediately were forced to take again to their own boats as the submarine returned and torpedoed the Inglemoor.

Captain Robinson with his dog, and crew were equally rescued by another steamer and landed at Benzance.

Belfast—Hugh McCruden, a German Jew, member of a British regiment, supposedly intoxicated, cheered for the Kaiser and was arrested under the Defense of the Realm Act.

London—Lord Kitchener has turned the park and gardens of his country home over to wounded soldiers who may roam and pick flowers "as much as they like" according to the warlord's orders.

Athens—(By mail)—That General Limman Von Sanders, commander-in-chief of the Turkish army, in constant fear of assassination, goes about daily clad in armor that not only covers his body but his head, is the statement today of the Constantinople correspondent of an Athens paper.

The general's head "impediment" resembles somewhat the head armor of the Ancients and discloses no more of the commander's face than can be seen through thick glass goggles. Despite all precautions, according to other advices, von Sanders was wounded. It was not stated whether he was hit when clad in his armor.

GETS CONTRACT FOR STORE

Rishel Will Build First Three Story on West Side

The contract for Shaw Brothers new building which will be located on the corner of Nichols and West Front street has been let to Ashley Rishel, the contractor, and builder. The building is to be three stories high and will be 44 feet wide by 72 feet deep. The first floor will be designed for use as a store room while the second and third stories will be used as office and lodge rooms. The outside walls will be built of tapestry brick, which is rapidly coming into use because of the architectural effects which can be obtained with it. The plans are being prepared by Rishel and son.

VIRGINIA LAWYERS PUT BAN ON WINE

(By United Press)

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Aug. 4.—In evidence of the wave of prohibition sentiment that has swept over the Old Dominion, the Virginia State Bar association for the first time in its history has decided to serve no wines at the banquet in connection with its annual meeting now in session here. A year ago the association declined to meet here on account of the drastic prohibition laws of West Virginia.

POLITICAL GOSSIP

Mrs. Marion S. Sproul, of Lowell, is the Socialist candidate for Secretary of State of Massachusetts.

Virgil L. Highland, a Clarksburg banker, is slated for the Republican nomination for governor of West Virginia next year.

Congressman Robert L. Henry has made formal announcement of his candidacy for the seat of United States Senator Culberson of Texas.

Wallace H. White Jr., a grandson of the late Senator William P. Frye will seek a Republican congressional nomination in Maine next year.

Wilbur W. Marsh, the Iowa representative on the National Democratic Committee, is prominently mentioned for the gubernatorial nomination in the Hawkeye State.

William M. Calder, former representative in Congress from one of the Brooklyn districts, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for United States senator from New York.

General primaries will be held in Massachusetts on Sept. 21 for the nomination of candidates for governor and the various other state offices to be voted for at the November election.

Women are admitted as delegates to the recent State convention of the Socialist party of Louisiana and took a prominent part in the deliberations.

The convention nominated Horace Noonan, of Shreveport, for governor. Many friends of Cole L. Blease, late governor of South Carolina, believe he will refrain from active participation in politics until 1918, when he will seek the seat of United States Senator Benjamin R. Tillman.

Many Indiana politicians incline to the belief that Governor Ralston will try for the Democratic nomination for United States senator against John W. Keam next year, though friends of both men declare the idea is absurd.

The Republicans of New Jersey are so confident of carrying the State in the next national election that they are said to be planning far ahead on candidates for such offices as governor and United States senator.

Eugene E. Schmitz, whose administration as mayor of San Francisco was rendered notorious by the revelations that ended in the conviction of "Abe" Ruef, has again become a candidate for the office with a view to securing "vindication."

Col. David J. Palmer, the present commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, continues to reject the idea of becoming a candidate for governor of Iowa next year, although many of his friends are urging him to enter the race.

Dr. Eva Harding, of Topeka is said to be the first woman to seek a national office on the Democratic ticket in Kansas since women were given suffrage. She has announced her candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the First district.

Harry M. Daughterty, former chairman of the Republican State executive committee of Ohio, is expected soon to announce his candidacy for the seat of United States Senator Pomerehne. Former Senator Dick of Akron, former Congressman Cole of Findlay and Judge D. D. Woodmansee of Cincinnati already in the race.

Miss Mary Shade who has been visiting friends and relatives in Clearfield for the past few weeks left today for her home in Portland, Oregon.

BIRTHDAY OF PRETTIEST PRINCESS

(By United Press)

London, Aug. 4.—King George, Queen Mary and Princess Mary were among those who sent presents and felicitous messages to Princess Marie Jose of Belgium today on the occasion of her fifteenth birthday anniversary. The young Princess, who is the third child of the King and Queen of the Belgians, is generally declared to be the prettiest child of all the ruling families of Europe. After the wedding of the Belgian princess she was sent to London with her two young brothers, and has been here ever since.

ACHOO! SECRETARY GIVE A SK-Z-Z-Z! SHORT T-Z-Z TALK

Sneezers Convention to Be Held in the White Mountains in September, 1915

Hay Feverites Moan Loss of Patriarch—achoo!—adm Welcome Approach of the Cool Days of Fall When Pollen Steps Flying.

(By United Press)
New York, Aug. 3.—P. F. Jerome visited at his office, 125 East 27th street, and asked for an authentic statement concerning the U. S. Hay Fever Association, of which he is secretary, sneezed, called a stenographer, sneezed again, and dictated the following:

Reverend Guy Roberts, is the President of the United States Hay Fever Association, which meets in Convention September 2-3 in the White Mountains of New Hampshire. Rev. Roberts was formerly the pastor of the large Methodist church in Bethlehem. He is active in promoting plans for the entertainment of the nearly three thousand Hay Fever victims who annually visit Bethlehem and Mapletown for relief from the onslaught of sneezing and weeping.

While Rev. Roberts is hailed as the "Main Sneezer" of the Hay Fever Association, curiously enough he is not a "sneezer." For the first thirty-five years of this popular organization the office of the president was filled by a qualified veteran. Ex-President C. E. Delemator, of Newport, R. I., who preceded President Roberts, urged the convention to elect a successor who could preside over their deliberations without punctuating his remarks with sneezes. The old days it was not unusual to declare a recess until the sneezing sneezers had quieted down.

The oldest sneezer on the records of the Association was Mr. M. Richard Muckle, of Philadelphia, who died during the past year, at the age of ninety. Holding the record for seventy-six consecutive years of sneezing. He was president of the Association from 1878 to 1883, and did much to make Bethlehem famous as a haven of refuge for the hayfeverite. It was under the administration of Col. Muckle that the famous "experience meeting" of the annual convention was started. At this session the Secretary reads from an alphabetical list of names of fifty-seven or more varieties of "cures" and the delegates applaud their favorites and knock the fakes. Last year a delegate from Philadelphia sent a letter in which he said he had suffered for seventeen years, but since adopting Christian Science he "could take it or leave it alone." A high brow delegate said, "A man never knows how much he has in his head until he gets hay fever, and then he wonders where it all comes from. It beats a correspondence school for returns on the investment." A delegate from Boston, quoted the classic cure suggested by Oliver Wendell Holmes, "six feet of clean gravel, six feet down."

The hay fever season will end in the—achoo-achoo—end in the Fall—achoo-achoo, when the golden—achoo-achoo—golden leaves and the poetic crisp ozone—achoo-achoo—brings delight to the sneezing victims, Achoo!

The hayfeverites accept their tortures with good humor. No one laughs more about the affliction than one who has it, as is illustrated by the members of the Association in annual gatherings.

RUSSIAN ENSIGN MAKES A BOLD ESCAPE FROM GERMANS

Kills General and Colonel Who Were Putting Him Through Third Degree

(By United Press)
Petrograd, July 1. (By mail)—A Cross of the Order of St. George probably will be bestowed on Ensign Bearer Kotchekoff, who has just reached the Russian lines after a remarkable escape from the enemy.

Near Rotagin, during hostilities, Kotchekoff was captured and taken to the Austrian headquarters. In a small room of the Austrian General's headquarters he was questioned by the General and a colonel. Taking advantage of a bayonet lying on a table, Kotchekoff stabbed the General to death as he pointed to a wall map his back turned. Then he made equally quick work of the colonel, hastily put on the uniform of the fallen General and calmly walked out past the guards and through the enemy camp to a nearby wood. Here he waited until night and finally escaped to the Russian lines.

GERMAN DIPLOMAT RELATED TO ENGLAND'S KING

By a strange stroke of fate, Germany is to be represented at Constantinople by a relative of King George. Prince von Hohenlohe-Langenburg, who has been appointed German ambassador to the Porte, is a cousin of his Majesty, although only by marriage. Before he became reigning prince he married the third daughter of the Duke of Edinburgh, Princess Alexandra, who, a few years earlier, had acted as bridesmaid to Queen Mary. The Princess is a first cousin of King George. Prince von Hohenlohe-Langenburg himself is a first cousin of the German Emperor, whose mother was a sister of the Emperor's father.

HANGMAN'S WEEK IN MISSISSIPPI

(By United Press)
Jackson, Miss., Aug. 3.—Friday of this week will be a genuine hangman's day in Mississippi, provided Governor Brewer, does not commute his prerogative of commuting death sentences to life imprisonment. Half a dozen executions are scheduled for the day. The shafts of several counties will participate in this wholesale execution with one hanging each, but in one county, Oktibbeha, there will be a two-wheel tight rope performance. Two of the prospective victims are white men and the others negroes.

AMBASSADOR PAGE'S DAUGHTER BECOMES A BRIDE IN LONDON

Royalty Present at Ceremony in Chapel of St. James' Palace This Morning

Scions of Distinguished Families Joined in Marriage—Many and Costly Presents Showed Upon Bride by Society of Two Continents.

(By United Press)

London, Aug. 4.—With members of the royal family smiling approval from their private gallery, Katherine A. Page, daughter of Walter Hines Page, the American ambassador to England, was married today in the Chapel Royal of St. James' Palace to Charles Greely Loring of Boston. The ancient chapel, one of the few remains of the old palace of the Tudors, in which Queen Victoria and several of her daughters were married, was prettily decorated with flowers for this, one of the few notable weddings that have taken place in London this year.

Though the wedding was considered private, with fewer than one hundred guests in attendance, a considerable crowd assembled in St. James' square to watch the arrival of the bridal party and distinguished guests. As is customary in the Church of England service, the officiating clergymen, accompanied by a surpliced choir, met the bridal procession at the door and preceded it up the chapel.

The bride's attendants included the Misses Frances Leggett and Joan Cavendish Bentinck of England and Miss Elizabeth Page of Aberdeen, N. C. The bridegroom had as his best man Frank G. Page of Pinehurst, N. C. Among the ushers were Harold Fowler of New York and Lieut. Louis McBride, the naval attaché at the American embassy.

Seldom has a bride been the recipient of a greater or more beautiful lot of wedding presents. There were many handsome and costly pieces of jewelry, bric a brac and hundreds of other articles presented by various members of the English royal family and the members of the diplomatic corps in London, besides the presents of the immediate relatives of the couple.

The ceremony at the Chapel Royal was followed by a wedding breakfast and reception at the American embassy, 6 Grosvenor square. After a short honeymoon in England Mr. Loring and his bride will return to the United States, and will spend their winter in Boston.

(By United Press)

New York, Aug. 4.—Miss Katherine A. Page, whose marriage to Charles Greely Loring was celebrated today in the Chapel Royal of St. James' Palace in London, is the only daughter of the American ambassador and Mrs. Page. She was a graduate from Bryn Mawr College two years ago and received the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Her eldest brother, Ralph W. Page, married Miss Leila H. Tuckerman and lives at Pinehurst, N. C., where he is a cotton planter as is also her younger brother, Frank C. Page. The second brother, Arthur W. Page, succeeded to his father's position as managing editor of the World's Work and lives at Cold Spring Harbor, L. I.

Charles Greely Loring, the bridegroom of today, is the son of the late General and Mrs. Charles Greely Loring whose home was in Boston. General Loring is remembered for his long active connection with the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, of which he was director as well as for his civil war service, in which he gained his title. The son was graduated from Harvard University in 1903 and later studied at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and at the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris. After completing his education, Mr. Loring entered upon the pursuit of architecture in Boston and has gained a high standing in his profession.

King George, immediately after announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Page and Mr. Loring, graciously placed the Chapel Royal at the disposal of the American Ambassador for the marriage of his daughter.

FOREST WORK TO BE PUSHED WITH RENEWED ENERGY

Department to Anticipate Receipts and Spend Money for Construction Work

New Plan Adopted Will Advance Road and Trail Work and Make Long Wait For Appropriation Unnecessary.

(By United Press)

Washington, August 4.—The Secretary of Agriculture's plan to anticipate future receipts from the National forests by securing an advance of money from Congress for the construction of roads, trails, bridges, and other public works would relieve many struggling communities from their present burdens of taxation, says an article contributed by the Chief of the Forest Service to the Department of Agriculture Yearly issued. This policy, says the article, would apply exclusively in those counties where there is a considerable area of national forest land so located that the forest resources can not now be marketed, although later they will yield a large revenue. It would fully meet the local difficulties arising from the fact that the national forests are not subjects of taxation, would aid in the protection and development of the forest resources, and would remove the one barrier which in a few places prevents farmers from immediately enjoying the benefits of the national forests.

Millions of acres of farm land are today undeveloped because of a lack of good roads. In opening any new country road building constitutes a hard problem for the settlers. At first, while the settler is struggling to erect his home and farm buildings and to clear his land, he usually can not afford to pay high taxes or otherwise contribute toward the expense of road building. The national forests comprise the remotest and least settled regions of the country. In many cases farming in these localities is still pioneering, under as difficult conditions as have ever existed in the United States. One of the Principal reasons for the failure to develop the large areas of excellent agricultural land which he near the forests is the lack of roads.

The government is trying to meet this problem in two ways, first by public improvements being made on the national forests, and second by the direct contribution to the counties of a share in the forest receipts. Up to date the Forest Service has constructed on the forests more than 2,300 miles of roads, 21,000 miles of trails nearly 600 bridges, and 18,000 miles of telephone lines. Every one of these improvements benefits settlers and ranchers. In addition, there is appropriated annually for the use of the counties in which the national forest lie 25 per cent of the gross receipts from timber sales and other sources, to be used for road and school purposes. Some of the individual forests are bringing in over $100,000 a year, and the business of the entire national forest system is increasing so that this direct contribution to community upbuilding is rapidly growing. In fact, already a total of nearly $900,000 is obtained from the forests every year for country road and school purposes.

The ceremony at the Chapel Royal was followed by a wedding breakfast and reception at the American embassy, 6 Grosvenor square. After a short honeymoon in England Mr. Loring and his bride will return to the United States, and will spend their winter in Boston.

Indianapolis, Aug. 4.—The Indianapolis Speedway will not be revamped because of the new possibilities of speed discovered in the Chicago Speedway. The Sheepshead Bay course at New York may even shatter all Chicago records, but the Indianapolis Speedway will hold its next Decoration Day race on a course practically unaltered.

All speculation on this matter was finally set at rest today by Carl G. Fisher, president of the local Speedway and pioneer of the auto racing game. The mother course will continue to present the human element in automobile racing. This course, with its low turns requiring extreme skill to bring successful speed, will stand out in contrast against the comparatively safe bowl courses, where extreme speed is maintained with mechanical precision. Men like Ralph De Palma, whose masterful driving brought his Mercedes across in the recent sensational race, are known to prefer courses where the skill of the driver is the determining factor. They are known to feel that if the bowl courses drive out courses such as the one here, the remarkable drivers will disappear.

As one driver expressed it today, auto racing is in one way similar to golf. If the low score is the only thing to be desired, golfers would flock to the easy courses that are now shunned, he said. The human element and the element of risk, so apparent in any 500-mile race here, are all that save auto racing from the humdrum.

Auto racing is about to be organized. Follow in the path of organized baseball, leaders in motor racing have banded together under law of Indiana into Speedway association of America with seven Speedway courses in the league. The courses are: the Indianapolis course, Sheepshead Bay, Chicago, Minneapolis, Sioux City, Tacoma, and Omaha. These "big league" cities promise to systematize the game and plan their events so as to prevent conflict of dates. They will also boost the game by advertising it properly. They have planned to send a shrewd agent to Europe to interest the drivers and makers who have not yet sensed America. In other words, co-operation is expected to provide the lubricant to place auto racing on a smooth and permanent basis.

But with organization, conflict is already seen by a few of the interested, especially in Chicago. New York is expected to object to another race at Chicago on Oct. 9. Chicago expects Sheepshead Bay to lower records and wants another shot at them. In case New York objects and wins in its protest to the A. A. A. contest board, it is hinted Chicago may break away and cast its lot with the Western Automobile Association.

HESSIAN FLY IS CAUSE OF WORRY TO THE FARMERS

Post Present in Great Numbers This Season, Now Planting Eggs for the Winter

Warning to Wheat Growers, and Method of Eliminating the Fly Before Next Planting Season Begins.

(By United Press)

The loss to the wheat crop this year from the Hessian fly has undoubtedly been severe in many sections. The habits of this destructive pest are well known and they indicate that unless precautions are taken now this loss will be repeated next year. There are two generations of the fly each year—one in the fall and one in the following spring, the second generation being offspring of the former. To get rid of the pest next year, therefore, the fly should be destroyed this fall. This can be done by the simple process of starving out the fly. The following rules have been drawn up by agricultural authorities in Oklahoma and are applicable to all sections of the country.

1. Burn where possible and safe, all stubble and ruined wheat.

2. Disk all stubble and ruined wheat immediately after harvest, where burning is impracticable.

3. Plow under deeply all stubble and ruined wheat fields before August 15, harrow the ground, and roll if necessary.

4. Harrow, disk, pasture, or otherwise effectually destroy all volunteer wheat.

5. As a measure preparatory to sowing, plow as early and deeply as existing conditions will permit; disk, harrow, and roll until a thoroughly pulverized compact seed bed is obtained.

6. Do not sow wheat until after fly-free date.

7. Rotate your crops if possible.

The date when it is safe to sow wheat varies, of course, with the locality and the farmer who is really anxious to save his next year's crop from the Hessian fly should ascertain this date from his state Agricultural college, or from the county demonstration agent, or by inquiry from the Department of Agriculture at Washington. If he neglects this precaution he not only runs the risk of serious loss himself, but may injure his neighbors as well. It should also be borne in mind that the most effective methods of fighting the Hessian fly are also the best methods for producing the yields of wheat. The danger in late sowing that the growth of the plants may not become sufficiently advanced to withstand winter is dealt with in Circular 51 of the Department of Agriculture. "The Hessian fly Situation." This may be obtained from the department of Agriculture.

THE WAY TO TAKE IS TO TAKE

Rome, (By mail).—Almost all despatches from the front tell of the prowess of General Cadorna and his troops. The following incident is typical. After the Italians, had stormed Plava, for some hours with artillery, Cadorna called one of his generals and said: "I want Plava taken by eight o'clock."

Plava was in the Italians hands at 7:45.

Hon. Joseph Phillips, of Clearfield, was among the visitors at DuBois yesterday.

SUGAR BEET INDUSTRY

(By United Press)

Washington, Aug. 4.—With the exception of Russia, the yields of sugar beets per acre in the United States is lower than in any other beet producing country. The average in America is 10.17 tons, and in Germany, 14.84. The cost of labor in this country and other factors of a similar nature unquestionably account for some of this difference but, on the other hand, it is no uncommon thing to find the widest range in the yield of crops grown under conditions that appear to be almost identical. One farmer, for example, may make 20 tons of beets per acre to the factory, while his neighbor can only haul 7 or 8.

A recent investigation by the U. S. Department of Agriculture resulted in the conclusion that the difference were frequently due to unsuspected deficiencies in the stand. It was found that without actually counting them it was impossible to estimate with any degree of accuracy the number of plants per acre, and that, in consequence, this number was frequently much smaller than the farmer had believed or intended. The loss may occur before thinning, during the process of thinning and blocking and during cultivation between thinning and harvesting. For loss in the germination stand the causes may be found in poor preparation of the seeded, imperfect operation of seed drills, late frosts, damping off, or such pests as cut worms or wire worms.

Improper thinning is, however, the greatest single source of loss. In this country the work is usually done without efficient supervision and there is no incentive to the laborers to be careful and accurate. The usual result is that the space left between the plants is greater than the farmer intended it to be. After the plants attain a moderate growth this fact is not perceptible to the ordinary observer. It is revealed, however, in a yield which is on the average 25 per cent less than it would have been had the thinning been properly done. A somewhat smaller loss frequently occurs a little later when some plants are destroyed by carelessness in the use of the cultivator.

The letter reads: "I am horrified to read of the occasion on which British soldiers, enroute from Havre to Southampton, the majority of them Blackwatch, 42 Highlanders and Gordons, were taken out of their cots to make room for the

Twenty-Seven Are Dead and Property Loss Is Millions

Many Missing Believed to Have Been Drowned in Raging Torrents in River Course

COMMUNICATION AND TRAFFIC WRECKED

(By United Press)
Erie, August 4.—Twenty-seven bodies had been recovered this afternoon from several ruins here, and it is believed that still others lie buried in the wreckage. The death toll resulting from the three cloud bursts last night that caused in addition $3,000,000 of property damage, plunged the city in darkness and tied up railroads and wire communications, was placed by coroner Dan Hanley at at least fifty.

The identified dead include John Donovan, fireman, killed in saving fire Chief McMahon; John Higgins, Mrs. Higgins and two children; Mrs. Emma Osborne, 44; Thomas Langdon, 24, and Swampie Anderson. All bodies were taken to the morgue. Most of the victims lost their lives when their homes were wrecked. Several entire families are still missing in the zone hardest hit.

Twenty-five Lake Shore trains were halted between northeast Pennsylvania and Erie. Gas and electric plants are out of commission and newspapers are being set in hand type. The flood is the worst in the history of the Mill Creek valley. Shortly after the heavens released their deluge it became a raging torrent. Four mile creek also ran wild, and the park at the mouth of the latter stream was wrecked. The theatre, pavilion and other buildings were washed into the lake, while a number of people barely escaped with their lives.

It is believed that the loss is confined to Erie and near vicinity, though wire communications with surrounding towns was cut off.

Mayor Stern of Erie acted promptly for the relief of the city. The armory of the National guard has been thrown open and 400 homeless are being housed there. The state militia have been ordered out to patrol the flooded section. A public dining room was opened in the building of the Erie Herald. Relief funds have been drawn upon their own stocks for clothing, shoes and other necessities for the destitute.

The tracks of the New York Central and Nickel Plate Railroad companies were badly damaged at Westleyville three miles east of Erie.

Cambridge Springs Suffers
Harrisburg, August 4.—The storm that struck Erie last night did extensive damage to Cambridge Springs, reports received here today stated. The municipal light plant which operates the filtration plant stated that section was put out of commission. Health Commissioner Dixon ordered a commissioner from Harrisburg to Cambridge Springs. He said that he stands ready to assist Erie should that city ask his aid, but he thinks it hardly possible that an appeal will be made.

Meadeville Also Hit
Meadeville, Aug. 4.—This city and surrounding country suffered considerable damage, but so far as has been learned no loss of life, in two cloud bursts last night. Four bridges between here and Erie were swept away and two washouts between this city and Exposition park on the line of the Northwestern railroad, it was reported today. The damage is estimated at $15,000.

CHARGES GERMANS WITH SUPPORTING HUERTA'S ATTEMPT

Providence Journal Makes Sensational Charge Against Embassy

Captain Boy-Ed, of Fake Passport Fame, Again to the Fore With a Plan to Embarrass the United States Government.

New York, August 4.—In a circumstantial story appearing today the Providence (R. I.) Journal makes the sensational charge that the German Ambassador Count Bernstorff, and Captain Boy-Ed, naval attaché of the German embassy, instigated the recent attempt of Victoriano Huerta to return to Mexico in effort to involve the United States in war with the southern Republic to distract public attention from the Lusitania incident, and to cause this government to check the exportation of war materials to the Allies.

According to the Journal, the plot was fivefold, and was designed:

- "1. To divert the public mind in the United States from the crime of the sinking of the Lusitania.
- "2. To divert the transportation of munitions of war from their British and continental destinations and to bring about a condition that would compel the government, in order to carry through a successful campaign in Mexico, to insist that manufacturers of arms and munitions should cease supplying foreign governments until home demands were filled.
- "3. To compel the lease or purchase by the United States of the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd ships now tied up in New York harbor and which would be necessary for use by the American government for transportation purposes in hostilities with Mexico.
- "4. To put a stop to the traffic now going on from Mexico to Great Britain and France in large quantities of oil from Mexican fields.
- "5. To force President Wilson to proclaim another embargo on the shipment of arms to Mexico and to use that declaration in the attempt to bring before the American people the apparent difference in the Washington policy as between Mexico and the Allies in this respect.

In an interview last night Secretary of State Lansing denied that the state department was interested in the plot or that Huerta's arrest followed its disclosure by persons sent to Washington by the Journal.

PUNY LOSS GREAT FROM WEEKS FLOOD AND CLODBURST

One Life Lost and Thousands in Damage to Property When Stream Leave Banks

Streets of Town Are Submerged by Downpour to Depth of Several Feet and Mines Filled Until Work Is Stopped for a Few Days.

The torrential rains which flooded Clearfield county the first of this week are reported to have done several thousand dollars worth of damage at Punxsutawney by flooding the streets to a depth of several feet, and filling the mines to such an extent that work had to be suspended.

One life is reported to have been lost. The five year old son of Peter Ropinsky at Anita near Punxsutawney met death by drowning in Elk Run which swept the boy away before help could be called. The body was recovered.

RUSSIAN LEGATION SAYS WARSAW IS EVACUATED

Berlin, Aug. 4.—The Russian legation at The Hague officially announced the evacuation of Warsaw according to dispatches received here today. The evacuation was ordered because the Russian army lacked ammunition to defend the city properly, it was declared. Destruction of the Vistula bridges has been ordered. Dispatches from the Russian front say that according to the forces of Ivanov is proceeding satisfactorily. The Austro-Germans have captured and captured eight of the outer forts about the city and the possibility of the Russian forces there to escape is diminishing.

Great Britain Celebrates First Year of War in Sombre Ceremony Throughout the Empire—Prayers Invoke Divine Aid.

(By United Press)
London, August 4.—Throughout the world of British subjects today a universal anniversary program was carried out in commemoration of the ending of the first year of the war, a feature of which was adoption of the following resolution:

"That on the anniversary of the declaration of a righteous war this meeting of citizens records its inflexible determination to continue to a victorious end the struggle in maintenance of those ideals of liberty and justice which are the common sacred cause of the allies."

London's part brought thousands to the vicinity of St. Paul's cathedral where King George, Premier Asquith and other national leaders gathered to invoke divine aid.

Reports from Amsterdam stated that many Belgians wore scraps of paper in their button holes this being the anniversary of the day of the German chancellor's alleged "scrap of paper" report. They were forbidden to wear the British colors.

DANCING MASTERS IN CONVENTION

Oakland, Cal., Aug. 4.—Two hundred dancing masters from different parts of the United States are here to attend the annual convention of the National Dancing Master's Association which is being held here beginning today and lasting until Aug. 14 under the auspices of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

One meeting during the convention will be devoted to the discussion of means to obtain legislation for the protection of qualified dancing teachers. Z. L. Hinson of San Francisco, president of the association, declares that the public should be safe guarded against ignorant and immoral dancing masters and that one can only be a dancing master after he has passed through a long and arduous course.

We hate war and did not enter upon this war light heartedly. We knew that Germany and Austria possessed an immense military power accumulated through years of preparation and that the war had been forced on Europe at a moment deliberately chosen by the central powers as that most favorable to themselves. We knew that the war must be a terrible one and a long one. But the path of duty seemed quite plain to us. We perceive that the German Government had dishonored the faith of Germany and attacked the country it had promised to defend in pursuance of a deliberate policy, which, if successful, involved the ruin alike of Belgium and of France and of the British empire.

The German Government proposes to itself to establish peace in the world by the dominant power of Germany. The German army and navy is to act as the world's police and to enforce on other nations a rule of conduct prescribed for them by the German Government. Any nation great or small, which stands in the way of the success of this policy is to be ground into the dust.

We are fighting, therefore, not only for our existence as a great power but also for our national ideals, since this conception of world policy is incompatible with our idea of the liberty of nations or of individual men. It involves moreover, as we have seen repeatedly in the last twelve months, the action of Germany as a non-moral State, whereas we believe that there is no hope for the progress of the world towards peace unless the nations are prepared to accept the Christian code of the duties of trustees as that on which they should endeavor to act in their relations with one another.

Any boasting would be silly as profane if breathed in connection with such a struggle. It is enough to say that the British people have never had and have not a shadow of doubt that their duty is to fight out these issues to the end, and that they have supreme confidence in their Allies and in themselves.

Petrograd, August 4.—General Gallwitz' new drive southward toward the Petrograd-Warsaw railway is being held up by the stubborn Russian resistance along the railway leading from Vysokof. It is officially admitted that the Slav losses in the last 48 hours have been very heavy. A brief official circle gave no information regarding the German assault from the north, but nevertheless it was considered very interesting in military circles. Last official communications reported the Germans making progress along the Narew river, but with considerable losses. Today's dispatches state that the Russians are valiantly resisting the enemy's attack on the Narew river. Military men here take this to mean that the German advance has been brought to a halt. It is believed that if the Russian line of the Narew advance can hold out two days more Russian armies will have reached the new positions assigned for them beyond the Vistula.

(By United Press)
Petrograd, July 1. (By mail)—How two Russian airmen, forced to the Nieman river region outwitted the enemy with petticoats was a story today from the front.

The scene of their landing was a small Lithuanian village where they burned their disabled aeroplane and appealed to sympathetic peasant women to help them escape. The women gave up their skirts, blouses and even supplied the unfortunates with a kerchief apiece. Carrying market baskets, the airmen calmly walked through the enemy lines until they reached the river. Here they drove into the stream, skirts and all but in doing so revealed their true identity. A fusillade of bullets followed from the Germans but the aviators succeeded in reaching the Russian shore bedraggled but safe.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, AUGUST 4, 1915

A "QUALIFIED" STENOGRAPHER

A young woman who recently sent a railroad president a written application for "a secretarial position" is said to have recommended herself as follows:

"A competent and qualified stenographer, experienced in charting statistics, possessed of the taciturnity and discretion necessary to association with executives, broadly read on matters germane to railroad operation, a student of unity and clearness in composition, with an acquisition of that uncommon knowledge of English—including the study of word differentiations—essential to the highest grade of stenographic work, an omnivorous though active reader with a vocabulary sufficiently large to meet the requirements of both your vocative and avocative correspondence. I am fitted to give such service as would be demanded by one in your capacity."

The applicant added that she would be glad to give to any designated subordinate an oral expatiation of her fitness for the position. Instead of jumping at such rare talents, the railroad president is said to have listened to send the applicant an assurance that there was not and would not be any opening. Perhaps he feared that, in spite of the promise of "taciturnity and discretion," that he might daily become the victim of the "oral expatiation" of a great variety of subjects as he paused for breath between stunts of "vocative" and "avocative" correspondence. In any case one can understand his reluctance to take into his office so resistless a cataract of words. Evidently a stenographer can be too highly qualified.

NEGRO REPUBLICS

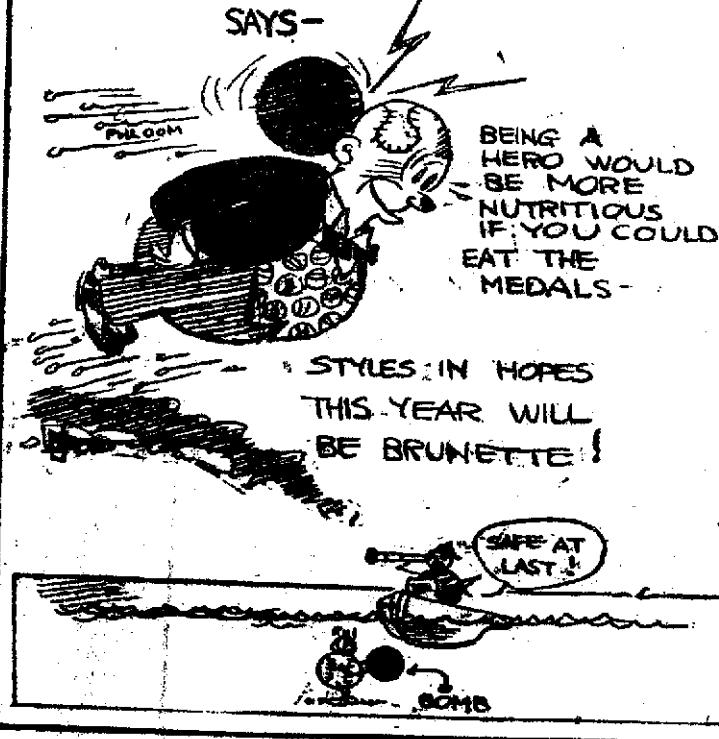

After seeking to check insurrection by executing 160 political prisoners, President Guillaume (William) Sam of Hayti was on July 28 chased out of his refuge in the French legation at Port au Prince, shot, dismembered and portions of his body were dragged through the streets. Such savage anarchy is nothing new in Hayti which has been almost a continual scene of revolution ever since the yoke of the white man was thrown off more than a century ago.

The western half of the old island of Hispaniola was originally held by France and called Hayti, the eastern half being held by Spain and called San Domingo. The aboriginal native Caribs, a gentle variety of the American Indian, soon virtually disappeared after the coming of the white man, and the population of the island is now almost wholly of African stock, descendants of the enormous importations of negroes from the Dark Continent. About the year 1800 after a series of insurrections the blacks achieved independence, the French section of the island domination until the middle of the nineteenth century, since which time Hayti and San Domingo have maintained separate governments, their war-made rulers sometimes calling themselves emperor and sometimes president. San Domingo long ago became almost a synonym for massacre and the renown of Hayti has been scarcely less infamous.

The fact that the so-called republics of Hayti and San Domingo are in a sense within our sphere of influence calls to mind a third negro republic which was of American origin. Liberia, on the west coast of Africa, was founded in 1821 by the American Colonization society, of which Henry Clay was president, and was settled by emancipated negroes from the United States, being left to its own resources and becoming independent in 1847. Much less violent disturbance has been reported from Liberia than from Hayti and San Domingo, but, in spite of all the coddling and tutelage received from the United States, this third black republic has not prospered materially, and, according to the accounts, has deteriorated morally, tending back toward West African superstition and savagery. Although slavery was forbidden from the outset, travellers within a dozen years past have reported that slaves could be purchased in Liberian towns for ten dollars a head.

According to the students of the subject, native African tribes have remained stationary for 5000 years. Little if any more capacity for real advancement seems to be shown by the negroes of Hayti, San Domingo and Liberia who have had the advantage of a certain amount of training under the white man. As to capacity for self-government, organization and the orderly processes of civilization, these three black republics appear to be almost totally lacking, and especially in Hayti and San Domingo the trend seems to be in the direction of barbarism as hopeless as that of Dahomey or Ashanti. Happily the United States is no longer responsible for Liberia. Unhappily our government considers itself in a measure responsible for order in Hayti and San Domingo, and in consequence American marines have been landed at Port au Prince. The annexation of the whole island by the United States has often been predicted and by some Americans seems to be desired. But it is to be hoped that we can compel respect for the rights of foreigners without resorting to a most undesirable solution of which we should soon bitterly repent.

Today's Geographic Study of The Great European War Zone

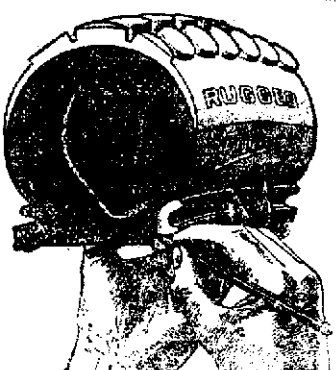

A description of Pultusk, where the Russian line stiffened just north of Warsaw and where the Russians developed a mighty opposition to von Hindenburg's advance, was given out here today by the National Geographic Society.

"It was at Pultusk, on the north bank of the river Narwa, that Charles XII. of Sweden, won his celebrated victory over the Saxon armies, the flower of which he besieged in the great castle, whose remains are still the first features of the fortress town. This victory was won in 1703 to further Charles' idea as to how the republic of Poland ought to be governed. Pultusk was again the field of a great battle action, when, in 1806, the irresistible triumph-drunken legions of Napoleon swept all before them out of the strongholds here. This battle was fought over the icy fields of December, when morass and swamp become solid foundations of frozen dark earth.

"Pultusk is one of the important fortified towns, which, spread out

France keeps war anniversary (By United Press) Paris, Aug. 4.—All classes of the people today observed in one form or another the first anniversary of Germany's declaration of war on France. Special church services were held in the cities, towns and hamlets throughout the republic. In most instances these were followed by public meetings with patriotic addresses predicting the ultimate victory of the Allies. In Paris the members of the chamber of deputies assembled for solemn memorial services in honor of those of their colleagues who have fallen in the conflict.

ENGLAND OBSERVES THE DAY (By United Press) London, Aug. 4.—A public holiday was kept by the British nation today to mark the first anniversary of the declaration of war. In every city,

CHELM, OBJECTIVE OF MACKENSEN, A RUSS STRONGHOLD

"Russification" of Poland Has Been Conducted From This Ancient City

So Situated as To Cause Constant Worry to Invading Germans It Has Been Marked for Capture—Modern Railway Just Only New Touch.

Washington, August 4.—"Kholm, or Chelm, as the Poles spell it, has been one of the most interesting of Polish towns under Russian administration, for from this quiet corner of subject, Poland the government program for the russification of the Poles has been directed," says a descriptive statement issued by the National Geographic Society. "Just over the Russian border, surrounded by endless acres of forest and agricultural land, the whole region in which it lies possessed of but indifferent means for communication, and so, screened from the feverish, suspicious politics of Warsaw and other Polish centers, Kholm, in peace times was a strategic point of rare advantages for the propagation of Russian influences.

"The Russian ideals, the Russian tongue, Russian methods and the Russian religion entered Poland by way of Kholm, and from here painstaking efforts were made to spread them among all the peasantry. The Russian point of view has sought to penetrate by way of the Kholm-Lublin-Ivangorod railway line, and from here, too, it has made its way south, even beyond the Galician borders to the great Polish city of Lemberg. Thus, Kholm, which the Russian soldiers defended so splendidly, was a Russian stronghold in more senses than one. It was the sentimental and intellectual heart of the Russian program in Poland.

"Kholm is the seat of a Russian bishop. The national Greek church, though it claims but few followers over the Polish boundary, is here strongly entrenched. The city supports a number of Greek churches and an Ecclesiastical Seminary, long founded here offers to the Poles and to the Russian Missionaries to the Poles the learning of the Greek church. The Russian church has based mighty efforts from Kholm for the conversion of the Poles to the 'Church of most of the Slavs.' Its success, however, is still hanging in the balance.

"The city is very ancient. It was founded by Daniel, Prince of Galicz, as business headquarters for rich family estates. It is today a living specimen of archaeology, with the railway running through it as one of the few reminders of the modern age. The shell fire of today shaking this out-of-date, time sleepy city must cause an uncanny realization among its citizens of the strides that the ages have made since Kholm last came into immediate contact with the outside world. The city, most of which was built without a plan, provides a home for 20,000 people, and, before the outbreak of the war, provided an arsenal, a quiet but powerful source of russification plans and schemes.

"Lublin, the important manufacturing town of this part of Russian Poland, lies 45 miles west-northwest of Kholm by the Kief-Warsaw Railway. Kholm forms the south termination of the strategic railroad that runs behind the last line of Russian defense in Poland, that north-and-south line of the Bug, reinforced and continued north from the Bug, by the Kholm-Brest-Litovsk-Biesostok-Osoewic Railway. Its possession, therefore, is of great military importance. The country around Kholm grows an abundance of grains, and is, also, very rich in its production of other agricultural products."

BIRTHDAY OF REVENUE CUTTER SERVICE

(By United Press) Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—All over the world today, wherever they may be, the officers and crews of the United States revenue cutter service will formally celebrate the 125th anniversary of the establishment of the service. The character of the celebration will be substantially the same on all of the vessels. The ships will be "full dressed"—resplendent with flags and bunting from deck to foretop; the officers and crews in full uniform will be mustered on the main deck and the executive officer will read a brief history of the revenue cutter service. Since its establishment in 1790 the functions of the service have grown until today they include a variety of activities ranging from the assistance of vessels in distress and the enforcement of customs and navigation laws to the suppression of autinities.

Manager Robinson, of the Suburban is hard pressed for a utility outfielder. Bobby believes his outfit would breeze home a winner if he only could find a pitcher to lead and the power in the event of a regular game becoming incapacitated.

SMALL DOG SAVES LIVES OF MEMBERS OF DOOMED VESSEL

Jumps Overboard, Captain to Rescue Excites Admiration of Submarine Commander

Prussian Awarded Silver "Life-Saving" Medal by Board of Trade, and Crew Rewarded for Heroism Displayed in Face of Danger.

BY WILBUR S. FORREST (United Press Staff Correspondent) London, July 20. (By mail)—Thirty-eight members of the crew of the British cargo steamer Caucasian, torpedoed off the British coast, owe their lives to a diminutive Pomeranian dog.

The story was told today at headquarters of the National Canine Defence League where Captain Robinson of the Caucasian was awarded a silver medal for saving the life of the dog and consequently the crew.

The Caucasian was torpedoed after a submarine had pursued the vessel for an hour. While the crew were warning the boats, Captain Robinson handed "Betty," his wife's pet Pomeranian dog to the second mate directing that the animal be placed in a lifeboat. The mate handed "Betty" to a member of the crew who accidentally dropped her overboard.

When the captain entered the boat he saw the little dog swimming toward the ship. He immediately jumped into the water and swam about a quarter of a mile. When he reached the dog he placed it on his shoulder and was surprised to find that he was within a few yards of the submarine. The German officer of the craft, standing on deck, addressed him in imperfect English:

"I had made up my mind to blow up your life boats because you did not stop your ship, but I will not do so in reward for your brave swim to save your little dog."

Captain Robinson swam back to his lifeboat and the submarine proceeded to its search for other victims. The dog was picked up by the British gunner, Ingelmoor, but immediately was forced to take a dog to their own boats as the submarine returned and torpedoed the Ingelmoor.

Captain Robinson with his dog, and crew were equally rescued by another steamer and landed at Benzance.

POLITICAL GOSSIP

(By United Press)

Mrs. Marion S. Sproul, of Lowell, is the Socialist candidate for Secretary of State of Massachusetts.

Virgil L. Highland, a Clarksburg banker, is slated for the Republican nomination for governor of West Virginia next year.

Congressman Robert L. Henry has made formal announcement of his candidacy for the seat of United States Senator Culberson of Texas.

Wallace H. White Jr., a grandson of the late Senator William P. Frye will seek a Republican congressional nomination in Maine next year.

Wilbur W. Marsh, the Iowa representative on the National Democratic Committee, is prominently mentioned for the gubernatorial nomination in the Hawkeye State.

William M. Calder, former representative in Congress from one of the Brooklyn districts, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for United States senator from New York.

General primaries will be held in Massachusetts on Sept. 21 for the nomination of candidates for governor and the various other state offices to be voted for at the November election.

Women are admitted as delegates to the recent State convention of the Socialist party of Louisiana and took a prominent part in the deliberations. The convention nominated Horace Noonan, of Shreveport, for governor.

Many friends of Cole L. Blease, late governor of South Carolina, believe he will refrain from active participation in politics until 1918, when he will seek the seat of United States Senator Benjamin R. Tillman.

Many Indiana politicians incline to the belief that Governor Ralston will try for the Democratic nomination for United States senator against John W. Kearn next year, though friends of both men declare the idea is absurd.

The Republicans of New Jersey are so confident of carrying the State in the next national election that they are said to be planning far ahead on candidates for such offices as governor and United States senator.

Eugene E. Schmitz, whose administration as mayor of San Francisco was rendered notorious by the revelations that ended in the conviction of "Abe" Ruef, has again become a candidate for the office with a view to securing "vindication."

Col. David J. Palmer, the present commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, continues to reject the idea of becoming a candidate for governor of Iowa next year, although many of his friends are urging him to enter the race.

Dr. Eva Harding, of Topeka is said to be the first woman to seek a national office on the Democratic ticket in Kansas since women were given suffrage. She has announced her candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the First district.

Harry M. Daughterty, former chairman of the Republican State executive committee of Ohio, is expected soon to announce his candidacy for the seat of United States Senator Pomerehne. Former Senator Dick of Akron, former Congressman Cole of Findlay and Judge D. D. Woodmansee of Cincinnati already in the race.

Miss Mary Shade who has been visiting friends and relatives in Clearfield for the past few weeks left today for her home in Portland, Oregon.

After the wedding of the Belgian princess she was sent to London with her two young brothers, and has been here ever since.

ACHOO! SECRETARY GIVE A SK-Z-Z-Z! SHORT T-Z-Z TALK

Sneezers Convention to Be Held in the White Mountains in September, 1915

Hay Feverites Moan Loss of Patriarch—achoo!—adm Welcome Approach of the Cool Days of Fall When Pollen Steps Flying.

(By United Press)

New York, Aug. 3.—P. F. Jerome visited at his office, 125 East 27th street, and asked for an authentic statement concerning the U. S. Hay Fever Association, of which he is secretary, sneezed, called a stenographer, sneezed again, and dictated the following:

Reverend Guy Roberts, is the President of the United States Hay Fever Association, which meets in Convention September 2-3 in the White Mountains of New Hampshire. Rev. Roberts was formerly the pastor of the large Methodist church in Bethlehem. He is active in promoting plans for the entertainment of the nearly three thousand Hay Fever victims who annually visit Bethlehem and Mapletown for relief from the onslaught of sneezing and weeping.

While Rev. Roberts is hailed as the "Main Sneezer" of the Hay Fever Association, curiously enough he is not a "sneezer." For the first thirty-five years of this popular organization the office of the president was filled by a qualified veteran. Ex-President C. E. Delemator, of Newport, R. I., who preceded President Roberts, urged the convention to elect a successor who could preside over their deliberations without punctuating his remarks with sneezes.

The old days it was not unusual to declare a recess until the sneezing sneezers had quieted down.

The oldest sneezer on the records of the Association was Mr. M. Richard Muckle, of Philadelphia, who died during the past year, at the age of ninety. Holding the record for seventy-six consecutive years of sneezing. He was president of the Association from 1878 to 1883, and did much to make Bethlehem famous as a haven of refuge for the hayfeverite. It was under the administration of Col. Muckle that the famous "experience meeting" of the annual convention was started. At this session the Secretary reads from an alphabetical list of names of fifty-seven or more varieties of "cures" and the delegates applaud their favorites and knock the fakes. Last year a delegate from Philadelphia sent a letter in which he said he had suffered for seventeen years, but since adopting Christian Science he "could take it or leave it alone." A high brow delegate said, "A man never knows how much he has in his head until he gets hay fever, and then he wonders where it all comes from. It beats a correspondence school for returns on the investment." A delegate from Boston, quoted the classic cure suggested by Oliver Wendell Holmes, "six feet of clean gravel, six feet down."

The hay fever season will end in the achoo-achoo—end in the fall—achoo-achoo, when the golden-achoo-achoo—golden leaves and the poetic crisp ozone—achoo-achoo—brings delight to the sneezing victims, Achoo!

The hayfeverites accept their tortures with good humor. No one laughs more about the affliction than one who has it, as is illustrated by the members of the Association in annual gatherings.

OSTEOPATHIC PATHOLOGY

Portland, Ore., Aug. 4.—The pathology of osteopathic lesion was the subject of discussion at the third session of the American Osteopathic convention here today. John Deaton, of Chicago, George Stull of Kansas City, Mo., George Conley of Kansas City, Mo., J. Foster McNary, of Milwaukee, and J. J. Smith, of St. Paul, Minn., were among the speakers.

RUSSIAN ENSIGN MAKES A BOLD ESCAPE FROM GERMANS

Kills General and Colonel Who Were Putting Him Through Third Degree

(By United Press)

Petrograd, July 1. (By mail)—A Cross of the Order of St. George probably will be bestowed on Ensign Bearer Kotchekoff, who has just reached the Russian lines after a remarkable escape from the enemy.

Near Rotagin, during hostilities, Kotchekoff was captured and taken to the Austrian headquarters. In a small room of the Austrian General's headquarters he was questioned by the General and a colonel. Taking advantage of a bayonet lying on a table, Kotchekoff stabbed the General to death as he pointed to a wall map his back turned. Then he made equally quick work of the colonel, hastily put on the uniform of the fallen General and calmly walked out past the guards and through the enemy camp to a nearby wood. Here he waited until night and finally escaped to the Russian lines.

GERMAN DIPLOMAT RELATED TO ENGLAND'S KING

By a strange stroke of fate, Germany is to be represented at Constantinople by a relative of King George. Prince von Hohenlohe-Langenburg, who has been appointed German ambassador to the Porte, is a cousin of his Majesty, although only by marriage. Before he became reigning prince he married the third daughter of the Duke of Edinburgh, Princess Alexandra, who, a few years earlier, had acted as bridesmaid to Queen Mary. The Princess is a first cousin of King George. Prince von Hohenlohe-Langenburg himself is a first cousin of the German Emperor, whose mother was a sister of the Emperor's father.

HANGMAN'S WEEK IN MISSISSIPPI

(By United Press)

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 3.—Friday of this week will be a genuine hangman's day in Mississippi, provided Governor Brewer, does not commute his prerogative of commuting death sentences to life imprisonment. Half a dozen executions are scheduled for the day. The shafts of several counties will participate in this wholesale execution with one hanging each, but in one county, Oktibbeha, there will be a two-wheel tight rope performance. Two of the prospective victims are white men and the others negroes.

TWO KILLED ONE SERIOUSLY INJURED IN PENNY WRECK

Buffalo Express Plows into Landslide Near Kittanning

(By United Press)

Kittanning, August 3.—One man was killed and another was injured seriously early today when the Buffalo night express of the Pennsylvania railroad plowed into a land slide at Churchill near here. The victims are: Jesse Williams, 38, engineer, Pittsburgh, scalded to death. M. R. Hilbrich, 22, fireman, Pittsburgh, probably fatally burned.

Five cars left the track, but remained upright and none of the passengers were badly hurt.

AMBASSADOR PAGE'S DAUGHTER BECOMES A BRIDE IN LONDON

Royalty Present at Ceremony in Chapel of St. James' Palace This Morning

Scions of Distinguished Families Joined in Marriage—Many and Costly Presents Showered Upon Bride by Society of Two Continents.

(By United Press)

London, Aug. 4.—With members of the royal family smiling approval from their private gallery, Katherine A. Page, daughter of Walter Hines Page, the American ambassador to England, was married today in the Chapel Royal of St. James' Palace to Charles Greely Loring of Boston. The ancient chapel, one of the few remains of the old palace of the Tudors, in which Queen Victoria and several of her daughters were married, was prettily decorated with flowers for this, one of the few notable weddings that have taken place in London this year.

Though the wedding was considered private, with fewer than one hundred guests in attendance, a considerable crowd assembled in St. James' square to watch the arrival of the bridal party and distinguished guests. As is customary in the Church of England service, the officiating clergymen, accompanied by a surpliced choir, met the bridal procession at the door and preceded it up the chapel.

The bride's attendants included the Misses Frances Leggett and Joan Cavendish Bentinck of England and Miss Elizabeth Page of Aberdeen, N. C. The bridegroom had as his best man Frank G. Page of Pinehurst, N. C. Among the ushers were Harold Fowler of New York and Lieut. Louis McBride, the naval attaché at the American embassy.

Seldom has a bride been the recipient of a greater or more beautiful lot of wedding presents. There were many handsome and costly pieces of jewelry, bric a brac and hundreds of other articles presented by various members of the English royal family and the members of the diplomatic corps in London, besides the presents of the immediate relatives of the couple.

The ceremony at the Chapel Royal was followed by a wedding breakfast and reception at the American embassy, 6 Grosvenor square. After a short honeymoon in England Mr. Loring and his bride will return to the United States, and will spend their winter in Boston.

New York, Aug. 4.—Miss Katherine A. Page, whose marriage to Charles Greely Loring was celebrated today in the Chapel Royal of St. James' Palace in London, is the only daughter of the American ambassador and Mrs. Page. She was a graduate from Bryn Mawr College two years ago and received the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Her eldest brother, Ralph W. Page, married Miss Leila H. Tuckerman and lives at Pinehurst, N. C., where he is a cotton planter as is also her younger brother, Frank C. Page. The second brother, Arthur W. Page, succeeded to his father's position as managing editor of the World's Work and lives at Cold Spring Harbor, L. I.

Charles Greely Loring, the bridegroom of today, is the son of the late General and Mrs. Charles Greely Loring whose home was in Boston. General Loring is remembered for his long active connection with the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, of which he was director as well as for his civil war service, in which he gained his title. The son was graduated from Harvard University in 1903 and later studied at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and at the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris. After completing his education, Mr. Loring entered upon the pursuit of architecture in Boston and has gained a high standing in his profession.

King George, immediately after announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Page and Mr. Loring, graciously placed the Chapel Royal at the disposal of the American Ambassador for the marriage of his daughter.

FOREST WORK TO BE PUSHED WITH RENEWED ENERGY

Department to Anticipate Receipts and Spend Money for Construction Work

New Plan Adopted Will Advance Road and Trail Work and Make Long Wait For Appropriation Unnecessary.

(By United Press)

Washington, August 4.—The Secretary of Agriculture's plan to anticipate future receipts from the national forests by securing an advance of money from Congress for the construction of roads, trails, bridges, and other public works would relieve many struggling communities from their present burdens of taxation, says an article contributed by the Chief of the Forest Service to the Department of Agriculture Year book issued. This policy, says the article, would apply exclusively in those counties where there is a considerable area of national forest land so located that the forest resources can not now be marketed, although later they will yield a large revenue. It would fully meet the local difficulties arising from the fact that the national forests are not subjects of taxation, would aid in the protection and development of the forest resources, and would remove the one barrier which in a few places prevents farmers from immediately enjoying the benefits of the national forests.

Millions of acres of farm land are today undeveloped because of a lack of good roads. In opening any new country road building constitutes a hard problem for the settlers. At first, while the settler is struggling to erect his home and farm buildings and to clear his land, he usually can not afford to pay high taxes or otherwise contribute toward the expense of road building. The national forests comprise the remotest and least settled regions of the country. In many cases farming in these localities is still pioneering, under as difficult conditions as have ever existed in the United States. One of the Principal reasons for the failure to develop the large areas of excellent agricultural land which he near the forests is the lack of roads.

The government is trying to meet this problem in two ways, first by public improvements being made on the national forests, and second by the direct contribution to the counties of a share in the forest receipts. Up to date the Forest Service has constructed on the forests more than 2,300 miles of roads, 21,000 miles of trails nearly 600 bridges, and 18,000 miles of telephone lines. Every one of these improvements benefits settlers and ranchers. In addition, there is appropriated annually for the use of the counties in which the national forest lie 25 per cent of the gross receipts from timber sales and other sources, to be used for road and school purposes. Some of the individual forests are bringing in over $100,000 a year, and the business of the entire national forest system is increasing so that this direct contribution to community upbuilding is rapidly growing. In fact, already a total of nearly $900,000 is obtained from the forests every year for country road and school purposes.

The ceremony at the Chapel Royal was followed by a wedding breakfast and reception at the American embassy, 6 Grosvenor square. After a short honeymoon in England Mr. Loring and his bride will return to the United States, and will spend their winter in Boston.

NEW SPEED RECORD MAKES OLD TRACKS LOOK TO LAURELS

Chicago's Bowl Holds Highest Honor in Automobile Speed Contests in U. S.

Owners of Other Speedways Preparing to Remodel Tracks Along Lines of the Successful Chicago Experiment.

(By United Press)

Indianapolis, Aug. 4.—The Indianapolis Speedway will not be revamped because of the new possibilities of speed discovered in the Chicago Speedway. The Sheepshead Bay course at New York may even shatter all Chicago records, but the Indianapolis Speedway will hold its next Decoration Day race on a course practically unaltered.

All speculation on this matter was finally set at rest today by Carl G. Fisher, president of the local Speedway and pioneer of the auto racing game.

The mother course will continue to present the human element in automobile racing. This course, with its low turns requiring extreme skill to bring successful speed, will stand out in contrast against the comparatively safe bowl courses, where extreme speed is maintained with mechanical precision. Men like Ralph De Palma, whose masterful driving brought his Mercedes across in the recent sensational race, are known to prefer courses where the skill of the driver is the determining factor. They are known to feel that if the bowl courses drive out courses such as the one here, the remarkable drivers will disappear.

As one driver expressed it today, auto racing is in one way similar to golf. If the low score is the only thing to be desired, golfers would flock to the easy courses that are now shunned, he said. The human element and the element of risk, so apparent in any 500-mile race here, are all that save auto racing from the humdrum.

Auto racing is about to be organized. Following in the path of organized baseball, leaders named baseball, leaders in motor racing have handed together under law of Indiana into Speedway association of America with seven Speedway courses in the league. The courses are: the Indianapolis course, Sheepshead Bay, Chicago, Minneapolis, Sioux City, Tacoma, and Omaha. These "big league" cities promise to systematize the game and plan their events so as to prevent conflict of dates. They will also boost the game by advertising it properly. They have planned to send a shrewd agent to Europe to interest the drivers and makers who have not yet sensed America. In other words, co-operation is expected to provide the lubricant to place auto racing on a smooth and permanent basis.

But with organization, conflict is already seen by a few of the interested, especially in Chicago. New York is expected to object to another race at Chicago on Oct. 9. Chicago expects Sheepshead Bay to lower records and wants another shot at them. In case New York objects and wins in its protest to the A. A. A. contest board, it is hinted Chicago may break away and cast its lot with the Western Automobile Association.

HESSIAN FLY IS CAUSE OF WORRY TO THE FARMERS

Post Present in Great Numbers This Season, Now Planting Eggs for the Winter

Warning to Wheat Growers, and Method of Eliminating the Fly Before Next Planting Season Begins.

(By United Press)

The loss to the wheat crop this year from the Hessian fly has undoubtedly been severe in many sections. The habits of this destructive pest are well known and they indicate that unless precautions are taken now this loss will be repeated next year. There are two generations of the fly each year—one in the fall and one in the following spring, the second generation being offspring of the former. To get rid of the pest next year, therefore, the fly should be destroyed this fall. This can be done by the simple process of starving out the fly. The following rules have been drawn up by agricultural authorities in Oklahoma and are applicable to all sections of the country.

1. Burn where possible and safe, all stubble and ruined wheat.

2. Disk all stubble and ruined wheat immediately after harvest, where burning is impracticable.

3. Plow under deeply all stubble and ruined wheat fields before August 15, harrow the ground, and roll if necessary.

4. Harrow, disk, pasture, or otherwise effectually destroy all volunteer wheat.

5. As a measure preparatory to sowing, plow as early and deeply as existing conditions will permit; disk, harrow, and roll until a thoroughly pulverized compact seed bed is obtained.

6. Do not sow wheat until after fly-free date.

7. Rotate your crops if possible.

The date when it is safe to sow wheat varies, of course, with the locality and the farmer who is really anxious to save his next year's crop from the Hessian fly should ascertain this date from his state Agricultural college, or from the county demonstration agent, or by inquiry from the Department of Agriculture at Washington. If he neglects this precaution he not only runs the risk of serious loss himself, but may injure his neighbors as well. It should also be borne in mind that the most effective methods of fighting the Hessian fly are also the best methods for producing the yields of wheat. The danger in late sowing that the growth of the plants may not become sufficiently advanced to withstand winter is dealt with in Circular 51 of the Department of Agriculture. "The Hessian fly Situation." This may be obtained from the department of Agriculture.

Plava was in the Italians hands at 7:45.

SUGAR BEET INDUSTRY

(By United Press)

Washington, Aug. 4.—With the exception of Russia, the yields of sugar beets per acre in the United States is lower than in any other beet producing country. The average in America is 10.17 tons, and in Germany, 14.84. The cost of labor in this country and other factors of a similar nature unquestionably account for some of this difference but, on the other hand, it is no uncommon thing to find the widest range in the yield of crops grown under conditions that appear to be almost identical. One farmer, for example, may make 20 tons of beets per acre to the factory, while his neighbor can only haul 7 or 8.

A recent investigation by the U. S. Department of Agriculture resulted in the conclusion that the difference were frequently due to unsuspected deficiencies in the stand. It was found that without actually counting them it was impossible to estimate with any degree of accuracy the number of plants per acre, and that, in consequence, this number was frequently much smaller than the farmer had believed or intended. The loss may occur before thinning, during the process of thinning and blocking and during cultivation between thinning and harvesting. For loss in the germination stand the causes may be found in poor preparation of the seeded, imperfect operation of seed drills, late frosts, damping off, or such pests as cut worms or wire worms.

Improper thinning is, however, the greatest single source of loss. In this country the work is usually done without efficient supervision and there is no incentive to the laborers to be careful and accurate. The usual result is that the space left between the plants is greater than the farmer intended it to be. After the plants attain a moderate growth this fact is not perceptible to the ordinary observer. It is revealed, however, in a yield which is on the average 25 per cent less than it would have been had the thinning been properly done. A somewhat smaller loss frequently occurs a little later when some plants are destroyed by carelessness in the use of the cultivator.

HARRY LAUDER GETS MAD

(By United Press)

London, July 22. (By mail)—Harry Lauder's Scotch is up.

In a burning letter to a London newspaper following a reported incident wherein sixty wounded Scotch Highlanders were taken out of their cots on a trans-Channel ship to make room for as many wounded Germans, the famous Scotch comedian today eliminated all comedy.

The letter reads: "I am horrified to read of the occasion on which British soldiers, enroute from Havre to Southampton, the majority of them Blackwatch, 42 Highlanders and Gordons, were taken out of their cots to make room for the German. Though today it is stated that one of the soldiers subsequently died and the Germans were supplied with eggs and bread while our British soldiers only had biscuits.

"If all this be true, who is to blame? And what is the punishment for such neglectful conduct? I am conscious of the feelings of a great number of Scotchmen in writing this. We are at war, and when a case of this kind crops up much damage may be done. Scotland demands the investigation at once. To have our soldiers have been in such a position as to be taken out of their cots is a disgrace. The brave lads should meet such a fate after fighting and bleeding more than I can comprehend."
